

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to an advertisement display for placement within a printed publication comprised of a plurality of panels, each of which have at least one edge. A first panel, attached to the printed publication, is coupled to at least one second panel along at least one edge of the first panel, such that the second panel is configured to be folded onto the first panel along the edge.